

Team Coaching and Group Dynamics Programme

A six-day psychosynthesis team coaching training course, followed by an EMCC TCIA* accreditation programme.

with Anne Welsh and Aubyn Howard, Psychosynthesis Coaching Limited, January 2025

Overview of the programme

Embodied – Relational – Systemic – Developmental – Synthesis - Emergence.

This course gives you what is needed to practise as a team coach in terms of models, frameworks, methods and tools, as well as develop your systemic and psychological understanding of group dynamics.

And we go beyond this cognitive realm towards ways of being and seeing, using self as a team coach, drawing upon the intuitive mind to help the coach develop relational awareness and embodied attunement within any group. At the core of our approach is the personal work of recognising how we become caught in relationship and taking ownership of our unconscious projections, transferences and valences in relation to groups and systems.

There is congruence between the way we work and other psychological, relational, embodied and systemic approaches. We show how the depth coach draws upon these perspectives to allow what is unconscious, unspoken or unacknowledged within a team to emerge. We seek to go further by engaging principles of synthesis to open the way for the emergence of a teams' full potential and collective intelligence.

The course is advanced coach training as part of a 250-hour accreditation programme* for those seeking EMCC accreditation as Team Coaches.

We welcome applications from coaches without previous training in psychosynthesis who have relevant personal and professional development experience and the capacity to self-reflect. Prior individual coach accreditation is required for EMCC team coach accreditation.

Although this is a primarily a team coach training, it is also a co-creative inquiry as we work together to evolve ways of supporting leadership teams respond to a VUCA world in crisis and transition.

The three two-day workshops can be attended online (starting January 2025) or inperson in London (starting May 2025). The accreditation programme practice workshops and supervision sessions all take place online.

Currently in the process of TCQA accreditation with EMCC at Senior Practitioner level.*

Programme Outcomes

This training provides the experienced individual coach with what is needed to practise effectively as a depth team coach.

Successful completion of the programme, alongside meeting EMCC entry level requirements, will enable participants to achieve accreditation as an EMCC Team Coach at one of three levels (F, P, SP).

We also invite you, when making your application to participate on the programme, to identify your own objectives – which may be many and varied, depending upon your experience and history of personal and professional development, as well as who you are and who you are becoming in relationship to the fields of team coaching, group facilitation and systemic intervention.

Learning Outcomes

Through participation on the training course and accreditation programme, you will:

- Learn about, understand and practice how to bring a range of models, frameworks, methods and tools to team coaching at depth
- Develop your systemic awareness and psychological understanding of group dynamics and team development
- Discover ways of working with the unconscious elements and energies present in group, team and organisational systems
- Build capacity for use of self and develop your self-reflective practice in relationship to team coaching at depth
- Grow your capacity for working at depth in the context of 'self-other-system',
- Evolve new ways of being and intervening in relationship to group and team process

Key Learning Outcomes for Part One – Foundations of team coaching

- Grounding in the principles of a psychosynthesis approach to team coaching at depth
- Growing comfort and confident in drawing upon a team coaching practice framework
- Enhanced self-awareness of your relationship with power, systems forces and group dynamics
- Discovering who you are as a team coach and recognising your developmental path - readiness to start practising

Key Learning Outcomes for Part Two – Going to depth as a team coach

- Nuanced attunement to the unconscious elements and energies present in groups
- Use self in coaching – building our capacity to be authentic and present-centred in relationship with others
- Learning how to create and facilitate a conscious relational space with a group
- Awareness of our personal and professional challenges, edges and blind spots in relation to others and difference

Key Learning Outcomes for Part Three – frameworks and tools, reflection and inquiry

- Practice as a team coach in a group simulation – learning from self, peer and facilitator reflection and feedback
- Learning how to work alongside in partnership with another team coach – awareness and skills
- Identify your key developmental needs for continuing towards accreditation with supervised practice and workshops
- Readiness to practice as a team coach in different contexts – familiarity with a range of frameworks, models and tools including (i) the model for working on team process and (ii) a model for team coaching reflective practice

Key Learning Outcomes for Part Four – The Accreditation Programme

- Increased capacity, capability and confidence as a team coach from practising with real clients
- Wider and deeper awareness of what is taking place in the team space – and ways of being and working with the dynamics of what is unspoken, unacknowledged and unconscious
- Internalised application of the model for team coaching reflective practice
- Greater adaptability, flexibility and options in the way you work as a team coach
